Nazis Seek Final Decision In Balkans Before Easter

BERLIN, April 10—The crucial stage of the new Balkan campaign approached today as fiercely fighting German armies sought to force a final decision before Easter.

By this Sunday, German authorities declared, the forces operating under Marshal Gen. Sigmund Von List hope at least to complete conquest of Yugoslavia and "pin the British down in Greece."

Today—fifth day of the new war—German pincers were being thrown around several Yugoslavian army groups in a vast maneuver to "choke southern Serbia," German sources revealed.

At the same time, Yugoslavian forces in Croatia apparently were falling victim to a huge new pincer movement by the northern German Balkan army.

This great maneuver, according to information in Berlin, was unfolding from Marburg in northern Yugoslavia down toward Agram (Zagreb).

At the same time, it was stated, an Italian army in the Julian Alps (northern Yugoslavia) was stretching from the former Austria-Italian border to a point above Fiume, bringing pressure on the Serbs from the rear.

To Narrow Field

German authorities said that maneuvers to slice off the northern and southern parts of Yugoslavia would narrow down the battlefield to a small area which then would be exposed to a "systematic, crushing squeeze play."

After seizing the great Aegean seaport of Salonika and isolating a Greek army in Thrace, German forces in Greece were expected to clash momentarily with Anglo-Greek forces massed to defend the central part of the Hellenic kingdom.

German strategy appeared to be taking the form of a vast pincer movement toward central Greece. It was expected that this would bring the German forces to grips with the main British-Greek forces almost under the shadow of Mt. Olympus.

German circles forecast complete collapse of Yugoslavia by Easter as a result, chiefly, of a junction between German and Italian troops at the Albanian frontier which cut off the Yugoslavians from their Grecian allies.

Amazing Speed Attained

Swift successes in the last few days have enabled the Germans to pour with amazing speed toward the Olympic region of Greece.

Informed Berlin quarters said that as a result, they anticipated main battle line probably will run roughly from beyond the Ostrava region in the north to Katerini on the Gulf of Salonika.

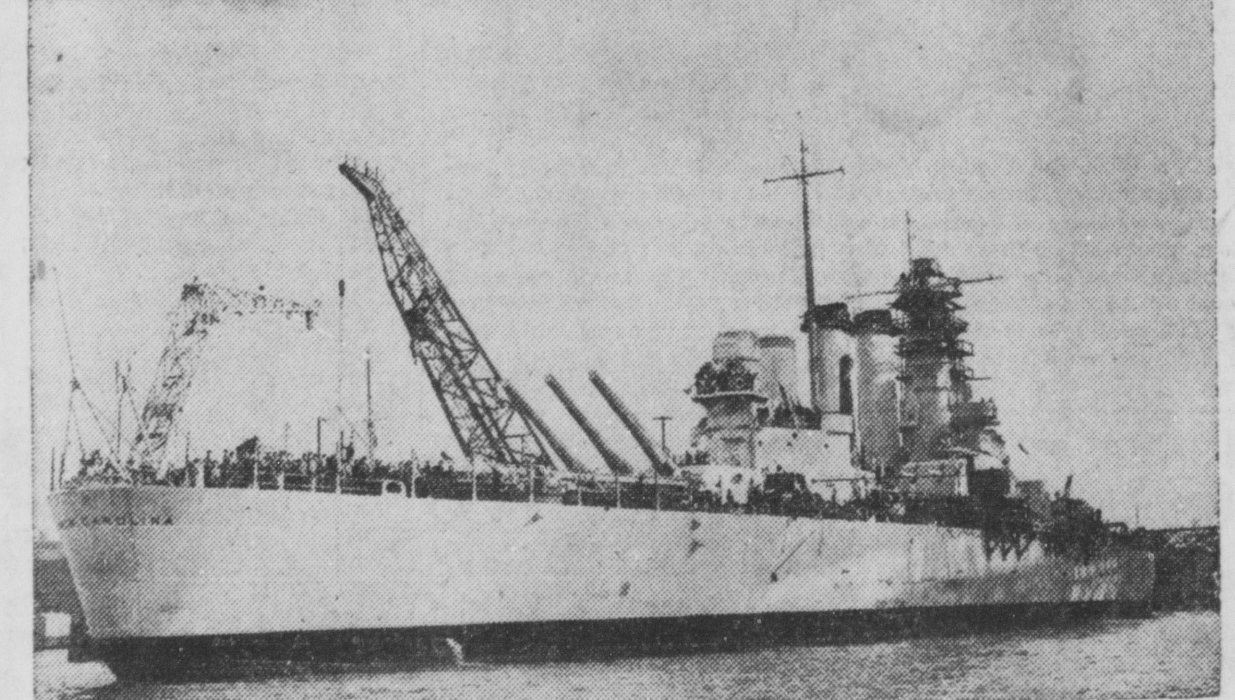

They said the entire Greek army of Thrace has been isolated and forced to surrender to the Germans following capitulation of Salonika.

(Editor's Note: Athens claimed this army was still fighting, despite its "difficult position.")

An announcement by the official German radio stated: "The Greeks and Serbs have been cut off from one another. Yugoslavia finds herself completely isolated and consequently cannot obtain supplies or other help from Britain and the United States."

"Northern Greece is in German hands. The position of the Greeks in northern Albania thus has become untenable."

Battleship North Carolina in the Navy Now

HERE'S America's newest battleship—the U. S. S. North Carolina—commissioned in the Brooklyn navy yard, three months after the 35,000-ton vessel, called the "world's most powerful warship," was launched. The North Carolina carries nine 16-inch guns which can hurl shells weighing as much as an automobile 20 miles. The North Carolina is the first battleship commissioned by the United States navy in 18 years. The North Carolina has a complement of 1,500 officers and men.

FAMOUS OPERA HOUSE RUINED BY EXPLOSIVES

Smoke Hides Metropolis, Hit During Night By Endless Waves Of Bombers

PALACE, LIBRARY STRUCK

Germans Claim Transport Vessel, Fully-Manned, Sent To Bottom

BERLIN, April 10—Swastika-flagged and eagle-crested Berlin, monument to the military might of the Nazi regime, dug out beneath a pall of acrid smoke today from the most devastating Royal Air Force raid of the war.

British bombers coming over in waves unleashed a hail of high explosive and incendiary bombs which carved a swath of fire through the heart of the capital.

Burned out was the glittering State Opera House on the Unter Den Linden, where Adolf Hitler has spent countless nights listening to the Niebelung ring.

Badly damaged was the state library, stripped long ago of its non-Aryan books and now a treasure house of Nazi lore.

Hit also was the famous Emperor Wilhelm I palace across the street from the Opera House.

Picturesque Bellevue Palace, furnished and redecored in recent years under Hitler's personal direction as the official guest house for all foreign dignitaries visiting Berlin, was damaged.

Potsdam Also Hit

Even Potsdam, the aristocratic suburb where in the days of the Hohenzollerns all the pomp and panoply of an imperial dynasty was centered, did not escape. Brief reports told of damage to Sans Souci, the summer palace of Frederick the Great, used by all his imperial successors as a refuge from state duties. It is now a museum.

(Editor's Note: Severity of the latest RAF raid on Berlin recalled this brief message from the war review given to the House of Commons yesterday by Prime Minister Winston Churchill: "In some cases we (the British) have already in our raids exceeded in severity anything which a single town has in a single night experienced over here.")

The British attack was not made without cost. At least 15 RAF planes were brought down, it was announced. Sky battles and the ear-splitting roar of concentrated anti-aircraft fire brought home to Berlin the full horror of air warfare to a degree heretofore unequalled.

At the height of the attacks, the skies over Berlin were filled with roaring planes, the stabbing beams of searchlights, the angry silver whish of tracer bullets and all the pyrotechnics of exploding shells.

Bombs burst beneath the famous trees of Unter Den Linden, now just beginning to blossom with the spring and in various parts of the city's central districts fires broke out from incendiary bombs.

Military Areas Safe

Official announcements which admitted virtually complete loss of the Opera House stressed the damage done in residential areas and at hospitals and state buildings. No military objectives were hit, it was said.

Portions of the Unter Den Linden, which slices through the heart of Berlin from the famed Brandenburg Gate toward the Lustgarten to the east were roped off for many hours as the result of bomb damage.

Firemen worked throughout the night and the early hours of the (Continued on Page Eight)

Athens Minimizes German Gains, Cites Great Loss To Mechanized Units

"SLAUGHTER" IS CLAIMED

"Merely Sad Episode," Says Radio; Reich Thrust Had Been Expected

ATHENS, April 10—Greece will fight on until final victory is won despite German occupation of Salonika and Nazi advances in Macedonia, Athens government authorities declared today.

An official communique proclaimed that the German advances had been more than offset by terrific Nazi losses in the mechanized offensive.

British Royal Air Force headquarters in Athens announced German troop-carrying vehicles in the Kilikis and Polycastron areas were systematically machine-gunned in low-altitude attacks and that "good results" were obtained.

Attacks also were carried out against enemy transport concentrations and on bridges at Axioyopolis, the RAF communique said.

(The London Daily Mail, in a dispatch from its correspondent at British headquarters in Greece, said the German advance through the Vardar River Valley was made "at the cost of terrific slaughter," and that RAF bombers and eight-gun fighters sprayed death among the advancing German legions.)

Today it was revealed that all bridges across the Vardar River had been destroyed by the Greeks after all war materials which could be saved were transported to the west banks of the river. Material that could not be saved was destroyed.

GARNER MAY BE OFFERED TEXAS SENATORIAL JOB

WASHINGTON, April 10—Members of the Senate Texas delegation today speculated over whether former Vice-President Garner would be offered an interim appointment in the senate following the death of Sen. Sheppard (D) Tex., but expressed doubt that Garner would accept the offer if made.

Under Texas law, Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, within the next 10 days, must call a special election to be held within 60 to 90 days and appoint a temporary successor to Sheppard in the interim.

Those considered as possibilities to enter the race for the regular senate seat included the governor himself, Reps. Dies, Johnson and Patman.

Almost certain to succeed Sheppard, who died yesterday from an intracranial hemorrhage, as chairman of the Senate Military Affairs committee, is Sen. Reynolds (D) N. C., who opposes the New Deal foreign policy and who was the only southern senator to vote against the lease-lend bill.

CHILLICOTHE, April 10—George Heinzelman, 67, a prominent Ross County farmer for many years, died Wednesday in Athens State Hospital. Mr. Heinzelman, who had served as clerk of courts and as commissioner, weighed 141 pounds at death, a loss of 241 pounds since his fatal illness started.

Mr. Heinzelman's weight was attributed to a glandular trouble, which reversed itself bringing on a nervous disorder and loss of weight.

He was recognized as an authority on McGuffey readers of which he had a large collection. He had served three terms as clerk of courts and two as commissioner.

Governor, Ford Discuss Strike At Rouge Plant

DETROIT, April 10—Negotiations aimed at settling the nine day old UAW-CIO strike at the Ford Motor Company Rouge plant appeared stymied today but Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner and Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey refused to lose hope that an early agreement might be reached.

Whereas during yesterday all indications pointed to quick settlement and speedy resumption of work at the Rouge plant which employs 85,000 men and has $155,000,000 in defense contracts, there was a distinct lull in proceedings early today.

Late last night, Van Wagoner made his first formal statement in two days. He revealed he had talked with Henry Ford in the latter's home and that a report on yesterday's negotiations had been forwarded to President Roosevelt. The governor commented that "my conference with Mr. Ford in no way delayed settlement of the strike."

Observers believed there were two pertinent questions currently blocking proceedings. Those questions, it was believed were:

1. Will the company recognize the union as representing its members pending the outcome of the National Labor Relations board election to be held within 45 days?
2. Will the company reemploy the eight men whose discharge precipitated the strike a week ago last Tuesday?

It was learned that two settlements have been placed in writing. One, it was reported, was prepared by Mr. Ford and the other by UAW-CIO negotiators.

TWO CARS CRASH UNDER TRAFFIC LIGHT IN VILLAGE

Four persons escaped serious injury in a two-car auto collision in Williamsport Wednesday night about 5:30. They were Eulas Dobyns and William Neff, Deer-creek Township, and Mrs. J. O. Dawson and her thirteen-year-old daughter, Patsy, of Clarksburg.

According to Sheriff Charles Radcliff, the accident happened on Route 22 at the Williamsport traffic light. Dobyns, headed north and attempting to cross 22, claimed Mrs. Dawson ran through the red light. His automobile struck the Dawson car, a 1941 Chevrolet in the middle, crushing the side. Mrs. Dawson was taken to a Williamsport physician for treatment of minor cuts and bruises. Neff was thrown from the Dobyns car when the floor came open, but was not injured.

MOST OPERATORS OF SOFT COAL MINE PLAN TO OPEN

NEW YORK, April 10—While soft coal operators representing 68 percent of the nation's $1,000,000,000-a-year-bituminous industry were officially reported ready to open their mines next week, leaders of the CIO's United Mine Workers today warned that the anthracite mines, employing more than 110,000 men, will be closed at midnight April 30 upon expiration of the present contract unless a new agreement is reached.

WAVELL'S CHIEF AIDE CAPTURED BY AXIS FORCES

CAIRO, April 10—Lieutenant General Sir Reginald O'Connor, who led singing Anzac troops against demoralized Italians in Britain's Libyan conquest, is missing with two other staff officers from operations around Bengazi, it was officially admitted today.

(Editor's Note: A German high command communique yesterday said that six British generals and 2,000 officers and men had been captured south of Derna.)

The other staff officers taken, a British communique said, were Major General Gambier-Parry and Lieutenant General Philip Neame, a holder of the coveted Victoria Cross for valor in the last war.

At the same time, British officials admitted a further withdrawal of their forces east of Bengazi.

"They have now been concentrated in a more adaptable area for future operations."

O'Connor was next in command under General Sir Archibald P. Wavell and General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson in the spectacular operations which began with capture of Sidi Barrani and carried the British to Bengazi and beyond.

An immense favorite with his men, Lieutenant General O'Connor marched with his troops when they took one Italian position after another, shouting and singing: "We're off to see the wizard, the wonderful Wizard of Oz."

"During the course of the recent withdrawal extending over several days," the communique said, "we (Continued on Page Eight)

Mayor W. B. Cady Proclaims That Business Should Stop For Hour

Cady and members of the Circleville clergy Thursday as preparations are being completed for services Friday afternoon in nearly all churches of the community. Mayor Cady, in asking observance, proclaimed that business should cease in the city from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. in recognition of the day. The Chamber of Commerce through its Retail Merchants' committee requested that all retail stores close during that period to permit employees to join in Holy services. Banks will close at 1 p. m. Friday, an hour earlier than usual.

Five of the city's churches, Methodist, Presbyterian, United Brethren, Calvary Evangelical and St. Philip's Episcopal Church, will join in union services at 2 o'clock at Calvary Evangelical Church, the Rev. The water is clear and fishermen are reported to be catching channel catfish and carp near the disposal plant.

U.S. Guard for Singapore Base Asked By Senator

WASHINGTON, April 10—A proposal that the United States Navy stand guard over the strategic British naval base at Singapore to release units of the royal navy for convoys was advanced today by Sen. Lee (D) Okla., as the issue of ships for Britain assumed new importance with the spread of the European war.

An ardent supporter of the aid to Britain program, Lee said he offered his suggestion as a possibility of avoiding convoy of war materials to the hard-pressed British by the United States Navy.

"In this way we could do much to aid Britain in getting goods across the Atlantic without taking the risks involved in actual conveying if that course should become necessary," Lee said.

While administration spokesmen looked on President Roosevelt's plan to purchase 50 seized Danish ships as a means of delaying a showdown over convoys, Sen. Walsh (D) Mass., chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, warned that convoys would be the fatal step to war, and weaken the strength of the navy.

Governor, Ford Discuss Strike At Rouge Plant

DETROIT, April 10—Negotiations aimed at settling the nine day old UAW-CIO strike at the Ford Motor Company Rouge plant appeared stymied today but Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner and Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey refused to lose hope that an early agreement might be reached.

Whereas during yesterday all indications pointed to quick settlement and speedy resumption of work at the Rouge plant which employs 85,000 men and has $155,000,000 in defense contracts, there was a distinct lull in proceedings early today.

Late last night, Van Wagoner made his first formal statement in two days. He revealed he had talked with Henry Ford in the latter's home and that a report on yesterday's negotiations had been forwarded to President Roosevelt. The governor commented that "my conference with Mr. Ford in no way delayed settlement of the strike."

Observers believed there were two pertinent questions currently blocking proceedings. Those questions, it was believed were:

1. Will the company recognize the union as representing its members pending the outcome of the National Labor Relations board election to be held within 45 days?
2. Will the company reemploy the eight men whose discharge precipitated the strike a week ago last Tuesday?

It was learned that two settlements have been placed in writing. One, it was reported, was prepared by Mr. Ford and the other by UAW-CIO negotiators.

TWO CARS CRASH UNDER TRAFFIC LIGHT IN VILLAGE

Four persons escaped serious injury in a two-car auto collision in Williamsport Wednesday night about 5:30. They were Eulas Dobyns and William Neff, Deer-creek Township, and Mrs. J. O. Dawson and her thirteen-year-old daughter, Patsy, of Clarksburg.

According to Sheriff Charles Radcliff, the accident happened on Route 22 at the Williamsport traffic light. Dobyns, headed north and attempting to cross 22, claimed Mrs. Dawson ran through the red light. His automobile struck the Dawson car, a 1941 Chevrolet in the middle, crushing the side. Mrs. Dawson was taken to a Williamsport physician for treatment of minor cuts and bruises. Neff was thrown from the Dobyns car when the door came open, but was not injured.

MOST OPERATORS OF SOFT COAL MINE PLAN TO OPEN

NEW YORK, April 10—While soft coal operators representing 68 percent of the nation's $1,000,000,000-a-year-bituminous industry were officially reported ready to open their mines next week, leaders of the CIO's United Mine Workers today warned that the anthracite mines, employing more than 110,000 men, will be closed at midnight April 30 upon expiration of the present contract unless a new agreement is reached.

CITY CHURCHES SCHEDULE GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES

Mayor W. B. Cady Proclaims That Business Should Stop For Hour

Full observance of Good Friday was urged by Mayor W. B. Cady and members of the Circleville clergy Thursday as preparations are being completed for services Friday afternoon in nearly all churches of the community.

Mayor Cady, in asking observance, proclaimed that business should cease in the city from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. in recognition of the day. The Chamber of Commerce through its Retail Merchants' committee requested that all retail stores close during that period to permit employees to join in Holy services. Banks will close at 1 p. m. Friday, an hour earlier than usual.

Five of the city's churches, Methodist, Presbyterian, United Brethren, Calvary Evangelical and St. Philip's Episcopal Church, will join in union services at 2 o'clock at Calvary Evangelical church, the Rev. A. N. Gruesser of the United Brethren Church being scheduled to deliver the message. Trinity Lutheran Church will conduct its Good Friday service at 2 o'clock. Communion is scheduled Thursday evening and Friday evening by the Lutheran Church.

Many of the city and county churches are arranging impressive programs for Easter Sunday, more details of which will appear in The Daily Herald Friday and Saturday.

THUNDERSHOWERS MAY BE RECEIVED IN OHIO AREA

Circleville's weatherman Thursday promised farmers and spring cleaners fair and warm weather with scattered thundershowers Friday as he pushed temperatures into the seventies for the second time this week. High Wednesday was 75.

Stage of the Scioto River dropped another three inches Wednesday night, and Thursday was leveling off at 3.87 feet.

The water is clear and fishermen are reported to be catching channel catfish and carp near the disposal plant.

U.S. Guard for Singapore Base Asked By Senator

WASHINGTON, April 10—A proposal that the United States Navy stand guard over the strategic British naval base at Singapore to release units of the royal navy for convoys was advanced today by Sen. Lee (D) Okla., as the issue of ships for Britain assumed new importance with the spread of the European war.

An ardent supporter of the aid to Britain program, Lee said he offered his suggestion as a possibility of avoiding convoy of war materials to the hard-pressed British by the United States Navy.

"In this way we could do much to aid Britain in getting goods across the Atlantic without taking the risks involved in actual convoying if that course should become necessary," Lee said.

While administration spokesmen looked on President Roosevelt's plan to purchase 1/3 seized Danish ships as a means of delaying a

RADIO BRIEFS

Ginny Simms, Kay Kyser's vocalist, is fast becoming the darling of the army. She's been selected "official sweetheart" of the uniformed forces at each of the army camps where Kyser has broadcast his "College of Musical Knowledge."

Freddie Stulce, sax player of Tommy Dorsey's "Fame and Fortune" orchestra, soon may stage an exhibit of his excellent amateur photography.

Dr. Frank Black frequently has his lunch sent to his office, eats it while working on a score. He claims it has no bad effect on his digestion. "You're supposed to be happy when you eat," he points out, "and I'm seldom happier than when working on music."

Tom Tully, lead in "Home of the Brave," is so anxious to give his best performance every day that he listens to each of the show's recordings to pick up flaws in his voice.

Billy Mills has collaborated with Alec Templeton, the blind pianist-entertainer, in reversing the usual music trend. While most modern conductors have been offering classic numbers in hot swing time, Mills and Templeton have rewritten current swing tunes into symphonic form.

Bill Morrow and Eddie Beloin not only work together—as writers of Jack Benny's weekly shows on NBC—but they share similar interests in pets. Both are cat fanciers. Beloin leans to prize-winning Persians, and Morrow, to blooded Angoras.

The number of chickens in the county is considerably less than ten years ago, according to the report. In April, 1930 the chicken population was 200,402 and in April last year it was 137,628.

Fewer farms raise turkeys than in 1935, according to the report. Turkey farms in 1935 totaled 97 and last year 71.

There were 259 hives of bees in the county last year, producing 12,363 pounds of honey.

OHIO TO SPEND 351 MILLIONS IN NEXT BIENNIUM

Appropriation As Voted By House 27 Millions Over First Bricker Term

OPPOSITION IS BEATEN

84 Millions To Go For Pensions; 97 Millions To School System

COLUMBUS, April 10.—The Bricker administration's $351,867,399 general appropriations bill for 1941 and 1942 was to be sent to the Senate today after a thoroughly beaten Democratic minority in the House had failed to increase it by more than $10,000,000.

The bill passed the House precisely as it was drafted by the administration after the votes of 73 Republicans had downed the efforts of 53 Democrats to amend it in a dozen particulars.

The measure, representing the largest state budget ever voted in Ohio, provides for expenditures of $27,000,000 more than was spent in the first Bricker administration, largely reflecting increases for aid to the aged and for proposed building programs at state universities and welfare institutions.

Major increases include: $13,500,000 for old age pensions during the biennium.

$6,500,000 for the institutional building program.

$1,557,000 for wages and maintenance at welfare establishments.

$1,100,000 for the same purpose at state universities.

$165,000 for the education of handicapped children.

$155,000 for the state industrial commission.

$107,000 for mine safety precautions.

$42,000 for civil service administration.

$100,000 for the agricultural experiment station.

Divisions Listed

Main divisions of the bill provide appropriations of $284,102,987 from the general revenue fund, $58,265,370 from the state highway fund, $2,146,469 from the conservation fund and $7,552,573 from liquor control board funds.

The public school foundation program would receive $97,235,000 from the general revenue fund, while $84,730,600 would go to old age pensions, $18,500,000 for poor relief, $3,748,000 for dependent children and blind persons, $19,376,980 for state universities and $10,174,000 for the maintenance of welfare and penal institutions.

State universities would receive:

Ohio State, $11,240,448

Bowling Green State, $1,105,636

Kent State, $1,694,692

Miami, $2,199,409

Ohio, $2,443,989

Wilberforce, $692,805

The above items include provisions for new buildings including $1,216,875 for Ohio State; $143,815 for Bowling Green State; $232,315 for Kent State; $298,690 for Miami; $320,815 for Ohio, and $105,465 for Wilberforce.

Two dozen hospitals, reformatories and prisons would benefit by provisions for $4,000,000 in appropriations as follows:

Columbus State Hospital, $415,200

Columbus Institution for Feeble Minded, $98,000

Ohio penitentiary, $82,500

London prison farm, $97,500

Girls' Industrial School, Powell, $84,700

Juvenile Research Bureau, $50,000

Marysville Reformatory for Women, $17,500

Lancaster Boys' Industrial

Belgrade Bombed as Nazis Invade Yugoslavia

HERE is an aerial view of the Yugoslav capital city of Belgrade. Although it had been declared an open city before hostilities broke out, Belgrade was promptly bombed by the Nazis as they invaded Yugoslavia and Greece. The German war machine, massed in neighboring Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria, struck in an attempt to wrest from the British their last foothold on the continent.

Today's Garden-Graph

"Succession cropping" is the growing of two or more crops in sequence on the same area of land in just one year. In other words, it means planting a late-maturing crop where an earlier crop has already matured.

Crop Succession

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, early peas are followed by late cabbage. They might also be followed by cauliflower, beans or tomatoes. With liberal fertilization, often a third crop can follow such as lettuce or spinach. Early lettuce followed with beans could have a third crop perhaps fall beets. Onion sets followed with fall beets might later be followed with radishes.

Succession cropping is another form of crop rotation which is a means of helping to control plant diseases.

If Lord Beaverbrook has produced such a miraculous supply of warplanes in so short a time, maybe we should borrow him for a couple of months.

142 UNION MEN LEAVE JOBS AT COLUMBUS FIRM

COLUMBUS, April 10.—One hundred and forty-two union engineers, firemen, warehousemen and truck drivers remained on strike at the Capital City Products Company today with no signs of any immediate settlement.

Henry Wilhelm, business agent for union locals, said the strikers were demanding that the company recognize the Columbus Federation of Labor as bargaining agent, with general pay increases and improvements in working conditions.

The Capital City company strike followed only a few hours the walkout of 25 union carpenters employed by the Henke Construction Company, of Chicago, on a low-rent housing project (Rich St.). The carpenters are demanding a 10-cent-per-hour wage increase from $1.15 to $1.25. A conference between union representatives of the carpenters and project officials was to be continued today.

Pickets were stationed around the Capital City Company which manufactures food products. Union representatives said the entire plant, including the boilers and refrigeration units, had been shut down. The rest of the plant, they said, could not operate without these two units.

F. R. Hearn, president of Capital City, could not be reached for comment and union officials charged he had spurned offers to keep maintenance crews on duty in event of a strike.

However, John A. Connor, counsel for the company, said "it is out of the question" for the company to meet the demands of the union.

MAYOR PLACES SEVEN ON BOARD

Park Commission Meets To Discuss Northend Work, Layout Field

To comply with an ordinance passed by City Council at its meeting last week, providing that the City Park Board consist of seven members representing both political parties, Mayor Cady, Wednesday night, appointed a new park board consisting of four Democrats and three Republicans.

Democrats on the board are Harry L. Bartholomew, chairman; T. O. Gilliland, W. E. Wallace and Lawrence Hulse. Republicans are Earl Smith, Dwight Steele and Dan McClain.

The new Park Board met immediately after appointment and discussed further plans for the development of the Ted Lewis Recreation Center in the city's north end. No definite plans for layout of the grounds have yet been adopted by the board, although general provisions are being considered.

Chairman Bartholomew said he would contact NYA headquarters in Columbus Thursday to secure an engineer who would survey the grounds, establish proper grades and advise the board on the best available plan of layout.

One of the first features to be added to the grounds is the softball diamond. The diamond will be placed in the northwest corner of the field, with sufficient space between it and the corner to construct a drive with parking space on either side. Charles Bosworth, supervising the project, reported Wednesday that the northwest corner of the grounds was ready for grading whenever the board gave him the signal to start. Work on the diamond is expected to start shortly to enable games to start by the first of May.

Chairman Bartholomew placed Dwight Steele in charge of securing trees for the grounds, and Tom Gilliland and Ed Wallace were placed in charge of the bleachers. Dan McClain and Lawrence Hulse will direct work on ball diamonds and tennis courts.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. # OHIO TO SPEND 351 MILLIONS IN NEXT BIENNium

Appropriation As Voted By House 27 Millions Over First Bricker Term

OPPOSITION IS BEATEN

84 Millions To Go For Pensions; 97 Millions To School System

COLUMBUS, April 10.—The Bricker administration's $351,867,399 general appropriations bill for 1941 and 1942 was sent to the Senate today after a thoroughly beaten Democratic minority in the House had failed to increase it by more than $10,000,000.

The bill passed the House precisely as it was drafted by the administration after the votes of 73 Republicans had downed the efforts of 53 Democrats to amend it in a dozen particulars.

The measure, representing the largest state budget ever voted in Ohio, provides for expenditures of $27,000,000 more than was spent in the first Bricker administration, largely reflecting increases for aid to the aged and for proposed building programs at state universities and welfare institutions.

Major increases include:

- $13,500,000 for old age pensions during the biennium.
- $6,500,000 for the institutional building program.
- $1,557,000 for wages and maintenance at welfare establishments.
- $1,100,000 for the same purpose at state universities.
- $165,000 for the education of handicapped children.
- $155,000 for the state industrial commission.
- $107,000 for mine safety precautions.
- $42,000 for civil service administration.
- $100,000 for the agricultural experiment station.

Divisions Listed

Main divisions of the bill provide appropriations of $284,102,987 from the general revenue fund, $58,265,370 from the state highway fund, $2,146,469 from the conservation fund and $7,352,573 from liquor control board funds.

The public school foundation program would receive $97,235,000 from the general revenue fund, while $84,730,000 would go to old age pensions, $18,500,000 for poor relief, $3,748,000 for dependent children and blind persons, $19,376,980 for state universities and $10,174,000 for the maintenance of welfare and penal institutions. State universities would receive:

- Ohio State, $11,240,448.
- Bowling Green State, $1,105,636.
- Kent State, $1,694,692.
- Miami, $2,199,409.
- Ohio, $2,443,989.
- Wilberforce, $992,805.

The above items include provisions for new buildings including $1,216,875 for Ohio State; $143,815 for Bowling Green State; $232,315 for Kent State; $298,690 for Miami; $320,815 for Ohio, and $105,465 for Wilberforce.

Two dozen hospitals, reformatories and prisons would benefit by provisions for $4,600,000 in appropriations as follows:

- Columbus State Hospital, $415,200.
- Columbus Institution for Feeble Minded, $98,000.
- Ohio penitentiary, $82,500.
- London prison farm, $97,500.
- Girls' Industrial School, Powell, $54,700.
- Juvenile Research Bureau, $5000.
- Marysville Reformatory for Women, $17,500.
- Lancaster Boys' Industrial

Belgrade Bombed as Nazis Invade Yugoslavia

HERE is an aerial view of the Yugoslav capital city of Belgrade. Although it had been declared an open city before hostilities broke out, Belgrade was promptly bombed by the Nazis as they invaded Yugoslavia and Greece. The German war machine, massed in neighboring Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria, struck in an attempt to wrest from the British their last foothold on the continent.

School, $98,500.

- Ohio State Sanitarium, $396,200.
- Orient Home for Feeble Minded, $120,600.
- Athens State Hospital, $304,800.
- Lima State Hospital, $138,500.
- Ohio Hospital for Epileptics, Gallipolis, $171,200.
- Ohio State Reformatory, Mansfield, $88,000.
- Apple Creek Institution for Feeble Minded, $763,800.
- Hawthorneden State Hospital, $550,750.
- Toledo State Hospital, $167,600.
- Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Home, Xenia, $80,000.

The Democratic strategy, adopted in caucus preceding debate on the bill came in the form of an omnibus amendment offered by Rep. A. Lee Fair (D-Holmes), which would have increased old age pension funds by $10,000,000; lands for the forestry division, $200,000; and would have decreased the allowance for the governor's office by $10,000 and the emergency fund by $800,000.

The minority placed greatest stress on arguments for an amendment that would have allocated to local subdivisions all sales tax receipts in both 1941 and 1942 in excess of $51,500,000. The Legislature has already passed a $12,000,000 appropriation for this purpose.

Retaliation Promised

When the amendments were defeated by a strictly party line vote, a group of Democrats threatened to invoke a House rule which would have required the body to vote separately on each item in the bill. This was abandoned when the majority leaders retaliated with the promise of keeping the House in day and night session through Sunday if the rule were invoked.

The Democrats then confined their protest to voting solidly against the bill, which now goes to the Senate where the Republican majority is certain to pass it in similar fashion.

SALES TAX RECEIPTS GO UP AGAIN. FIGURES SHOW

COLUMBUS, April 10.—Sales tax receipts continue to increase, collections for the week ended March 29 being more than $400,000 above those for the corresponding week of 1940, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported today. The latest weekly figures showed receipts of $1,307,000 bringing to $12,082,000 collections to date. Corresponding figures of 1940 showed weekly collections of $965,000 and a total of $10,519,000.

MAYOR PLACES SEVEN ON BOARD

Park Commission Meets To Discuss Northend Work, Layout Field

To comply with an ordinance passed by City Council at its meeting last week, providing that the City Park Board consist of seven members representing both political parties, Mayor Cady, Wednesday night, appointed a new park board consisting of four Democrats and three Republicans.

Democrats on the board are Harry L. Bartholomew, chairman; T. O. Gilliland, W. E. Wallace and Lawrence Hulse. Republicans are Earl Smith, Dwight Steele and Dan McClain.

The new Park Board met immediately after appointment and discussed further plans for the development of the Ted Lewis Recreation Center in the city's north end. No definite plans for layout of the grounds have yet been adopted by the board, although general provisions are being considered.

Chairman Bartholomew said he would contact NYA headquarters in Columbus Thursday to secure an engineer who would survey the grounds, establish proper grades and advise the board on the best available plan of layout.

One of the first features to be added to the grounds is the softball diamond. The diamond will be placed in the northwest corner of the field, with sufficient space between it and the corner to construct a drive with parking space on either side. Charles Bosworth, supervising the project, reported Wednesday that the northwest corner of the grounds was ready for grading whenever the board gave him the signal to start. Work on the diamond is expected to start shortly to enable games to start by the first of May.

Chairman Bartholomew placed Dwight Steele in charge of securing trees for the grounds, and Tom Gilliland and Ed Wallace were placed in charge of the bleachers. Dan McClain and Lawrence Hulse will direct work on ball diamonds and tennis courts.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 5 mites a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Just recently, Monday to be exact, measurements for thirty-one uniforms, including the drum major outfit, for the local school band were made. The committee on selection of these suits is Mrs. Edwin Irwin, Mrs. Edna Dunnick, Fred Brobst, Donna Courtright, Ralph Mahaffey. The uniforms are expected to be received within the next couple of weeks and then we'll be seeing and hearing something worthwhile in that town school parade headed by this newly uniformed band.

Naming the teachers and the places they are to occupy in the local school as employed by the local school board Tuesday evening: Vernadine LeMay, grade one; Merle E. Kuhn, grade two; Esther M. Petty, grade three; Elizabeth Cromley, grade four; Francis Jane Nelson, grade five; Lawrence Fulen, grade six; Charles D. Eversole, grade seven; Edwin Irwin, grade eight; Geraldine Conrad, physical education, part time, and Home Economics; Gretchen Plum, vocal music, part time.

Superintendent C. A. Higley in charge of schools here for the last thirteen years, was employed for a three-year term. The employment of teachers for the several high school places will likely be a part of the business transacted at the Ashville-Harrison board meeting scheduled for Monday evening, the 21st.

Our Doctor Gardner, who has been getting much larger slices of publicity than doctors usually get, is slated to return home from the hospital Friday.

Mrs. Carrie Fridley, whose sister, Miss Julia Longenbaugh, died recently in the home, leaves Mrs. Fridley alone there. She will spend part time at least, at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Frank Bright and wife, Columbus.

Picture show stock was on the "up and up" yesterday, another party being here giving us the once over with strong promises to return in a "day or two" for a more extensive survey. Street pictures, same as last year, are assured.

INTERNATIONAL MORALITIES

I have this letter: "You say American foreign policy must be predicated on American interests alone. You say we should go to war or stay out, make alliances or not, only to promote American interests. It seems to me your whole argument is materialistic. Don't you recognize that we have any moral responsibilities in foreign lands?"

A fair question. I can understand how cold and selfish the historic foreign policy of Washington, Jefferson and Monroe must appear to some of those who dream—and dream sincerely—of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God in a warless world.

It is a noble dream. Lofty aspiration has gone into its weaving. I would be the last to discourage its consummation.

But the way the question is put,—that the government of the United States, as such, has moral duties in foreign lands—I deny it. Moreover, I affirm that it is a dangerous doctrine. It can only rest on the assumption that Church and State should be united, not separated, and that the State exists to execute the will of the Church.

After centuries of bitter experience our warm-hearted but cool-headed forefathers rejected this assumption. They made their veto good by putting the Bill of Rights into the American Constitution. They knew, and knew well, that if the State exists to execute the will of the Church in foreign lands, you cannot escape its corollary,—that the State exists to execute the will of the Church at home! And that is the end of religious freedom. That calls back the old gigantic struggle as to which Church shall control the State in order to enforce its will, its dogma, its code of morals and ethics. Shall it be Christian or Moslem, Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile?

Religious intolerance is bad enough, but when it is augmented by the authority of the State, it is death itself. For as Senator James A. Reed once said, "There is no sword so sharp as the knife of the bigot in the hands of the State." That doctrine our fathers rejected. Our internationalists, without historic prospective, are asking us to return to it. Thoughtlessly, as it seems to me, they open the door to a new Dark Age and ask us to enter.

The position taken by those who put America first in the field of foreign affairs by no means excludes the recognition of moral responsibilities in foreign lands. The Catholic church for centuries and the Protestant Church for at least one hundred and fifty years have recognized these responsibilities. Into the field of foreign missions they have sent their most devoted servants. They have entered the homes of lepers and the stockades of savages. They have carried the school, the hospital and the Cross to the ends of the world. They have removed shutters from the human mind. They have bound up the wounds of the victims of pogroms. They have kept alive the dream of brotherhood and the hope of peace.

But always, at least in the last century, without the authority of the State, without warships or bombers. As such they have been welcomed in nearly every land. Whatever good has been done, or can be done, has been done largely because they came unarmed. If they had come as the armed missionaries of a foreign power, to impose, by force, a moral code, they would have been resisted at every point by those who prized their independence, even in the field of morals and religious faith.

American non-interventionists do not wish to prevent the internationalists from fulfilling every compulsion of moral duty, in foreign lands. They can contribute to foreign missions or the Red Cross; they can build medical centers; they can "go ye and teach all nations." I wonder how many of our political internationalists have done any of these things.

International treaties to establish boundaries, limit armament, and promote commerce and peace, yes, by all means. This is a proper function of government. But bear in mind that treaties are a matter of consent, not force. If force writes them, they are immoral, and the means defeats the end.

The doctrine that the United States, as a government, has any duty to establish the "four freedoms" by force in foreign lands was totally rejected by Washington, Jefferson, Monroe and the great of old. In breaking with the wisdom of the past, acquired only by bitter experience, Mr. Roosevelt is on dangerous ground. It is rejected by history and logic alike. For it justifies Hitler and the Japs as well as ourselves. For if we may by force impose our code outside our frontiers, they can do so likewise. Then the sword alone rules the world.

After all the choirs had been heard and recordings studied carefully by the judges, the Ohio State group was voted unanimously the best of all. The judges were all well known musical authorities—Deems Taylor, Frederick Schang and Davidson Taylor, all of Columbia Broadcasting System, and John Finley Williamson, director of the Westminster Choir School.

The immediate award was a silver cup and a recognition broadcast. But the following year Columbia invited the Symphonic Choir on a trip through five states, with public concerts in the

Uniforms To Be Worn

TEACHERS ARE ASSIGNED

Three Year Contract Voted For Superintendent
By Board

By S. D. Fridley
Phone, Ashville 79

Just recently, Monday to be exact, measurements for thirty-one uniforms, including the drum major outfit, for the local school band were made. The committee on selection of these suits is Mrs. Edwin Irwin, Mrs. Edna Dunnick, Fred Brobst, Donna Courtright, Ralph Mahaffey. The uniforms are expected to be received within the next couple of weeks and then we'll be seeing and hearing something worthwhile in that town school parade headed by this newly uniformed band.

Naming the teachers and the places they are to occupy in the local school as employed by the local school board Tuesday evening; Vernadine LeMay, grade one; Merle E. Kuhn, grade two; Esther M. Petty, grade three; Elizabeth Cromley, grade four; Francis Jane Nelson, grade five; Lawrence Fullen, grade six; Charles D. Eversole, grade seven; Edwin Irwin, grade eight; Geraldine Conrad, physical education, part time, and Home Economics; Gretchen Plum, vocal music, part time.

Superintendent C. A. Higley in charge of schools here for the last thirteen years, was employed for a three-year term. The employment of teachers for the several high school places will likely be a part of the business transacted at the Ashville-Harrison board meeting scheduled for Monday evening, the 21st.

Our Doctor Gardner, who has been getting much larger slices of publicity than doctors usually get, is slated to return home from the hospital Friday.

Mrs. Carrie Fridley, whose sister, Miss Julia Longenbaugh, died recently in the home, leaves Mrs. Fridley alone there. She will spend part time at least, at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Frank Bright and wife, Columbus.

Picture show stock was on the "up and up" yesterday, another party being here giving us the once over with strong promises to return in a "day or two" for a more extensive survey. Street pictures, same as last year, are assured.

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

INTERNATIONAL MORALITIES

I have this letter: "You say American foreign policy must be predicated on American interests alone. You say we should go to war or stay out, make alliances or not, only to promote American interests. It seems to me your whole argument is materialistic. Don't you recognize that we have any moral responsibilities in foreign lands?"

A fair question. I can understand how cold and selfish the historic foreign policy of Washington, Jefferson and Monroe must appear to some of those who dream—and dream sincerely—of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God in a warless world.

It is a noble dream. Lofty aspiration has gone into its weaving. I would be the last to discourage its consummation.

But the way the question is put,—that the government of the United States, as such, has moral duties in foreign lands—I deny it. Moreover, I affirm that it is a dangerous doctrine. It can only rest on the assumption that Church and State should be united, not separated, and that the State exists to execute the will of the Church.

After centuries of bitter experience our warm-hearted but cool-headed forefathers rejected this assumption. They made their veto good by putting the Bill of Rights into the American Constitution. They knew, and knew well, that if the State exists to execute the will of the Church in foreign lands, you cannot escape its corollary,—that the State exists to execute the will of the Church at home! And that is the end of religious freedom. That calls back the old gigantic struggle as to which Church shall control the State in order to enforce its will, its dogma, its code of morals and ethics. Shall it be Christian or Moslem, Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile?

Religious intolerance is bad enough, but when it is augmented by the authority of the State, it is death itself. For as Senator James A. Reed once said, "There is no sword so sharp as the knife of the bigot in the hands of the State."

That doctrine our fathers rejected. Our internationalists, without historic perspective, are asking us to return to it. Thoughtlessly, as it seems to me, they open the door to a new Dark Age and ask us to enter.

The position taken by those who put America first in the field of foreign affairs by no means excludes the recognition of moral responsibilities in foreign lands. The Catholic church for centuries and the Protestant Church for at least one hundred and fifty years have recognized these responsibilities.

Into the field of foreign missions they have sent their most devoted servants. They have carried the homes of lepers and the stockades of savages. They have carried the school, the hospital and the Cross to the ends of the world. They have removed shutters from the human mind. They have bound up the wounds of the victims of pogroms. They have kept alive the dream of brotherhood and the hope of peace.

But always, at least in the last century, without the authority of the State, without warships or bombers. As such they have been welcomed in nearly every land. Whatever good has been done, or can be done, has been done largely because they came unarmed. If they had come as the armed missionaries of a foreign power, to impose, by force, a moral code, they would have been resisted at every point by those who prized their independence, even in the field of morals and religious faith.

American non-interventionists do not wish to prevent the internationalists from fulfilling every compulsion of moral duty, in foreign lands. They can contribute to foreign missions or the Red Cross; they can build medical centers; they can "go ye and teach all nations." I wonder how many of our political internationalists have done any of these things.

International treaties to establish boundaries, limit armament, and promote commerce and peace, yes, by all means. This is a proper function of government. But bear in mind that treaties are a matter of consent, not force. If force writes them, they are immoral, and the means defeats the end.

The doctrine that the United States, as a government, has any duty to establish the "four freedoms" by force in foreign lands was totally rejected by Washington, Jefferson, Monroe and the great of old. ### ONE HUNDRED DAYS

IF some newspaper readers feel that the press is harping too insistently on the war string just now, consider this:

John D. Biggers of Toledo, one of the many big business men now serving their country for a dollar a year, says we have 100 days to decide this Battle for Civilization—the greatest battle in human history. And maybe he is right. We don't dare assume that he isn't.

These days, he says, are "precious" and "no one knows how much they may mean in the history of the world." When captains of industry agree with statesmen and military men, the press and public must listen and help, in all their different ways, to preserve the civilization we have known and the free opportunity that still lives in America.

This means moral compulsion on every American capable of understanding. In extreme danger it would mean stronger compulsions, industrial and otherwise.

"I don't believe in a democracy forcing anybody to do anything until we have exhausted all means of persuasion," he says.

It shouldn't be necessary in America, in a time like this, to bring compulsion on anybody of understanding what is going on in the world and how close our civilization is to a great catastrophe.

LAKE-MAKING

ILLINOIS expects to have 30 new, man-made lakes within the next few years. They will be created by using springs, damming small rivers and constructing spillways on properties under state, county or municipal control. Communities in need of improved water supplies will be given preference in the location of the lakes.

The finished lakes will average 50 acres in area, varying from five to 200 according to the special needs of the region in which they are built.

Such work serves a number of purposes, including flood control, check of soil erosion, recreation and water supply for human beings, and improvement of scenery. There have been artificial lakes before in many parts of the world, but creating them in such numbers in the middle west is something new in conservation.

An editorial statement that the Balkan nations "may make history by fighting, by bargaining, by surrendering" suggests that it would be hard not to make history these days.

It cannot be expected that even our rich nation can "maintain its standard of living" completely in these times.

Almanac note: About this time, look for another ideological blood-bath in Europe.

Up to a glorious morning, up earlier than usual because of fine warm sunshine streaming in the window, and delighted birds singing outside. Up feeling that all was well with the world until being brought down with a thud by the morning print headlines. Why, oh why, is man such a silly creature? Why can't he live and let live? Why must he war and subsist on a diet of greed and hatred? I haven't the vaguest idea. Have you?

In the mail the sales tax report for the week ending March 29. The best so far this year and considerably better than the corresponding week of last year. And for the special benefit of those who believe they do not pay taxes because they own no real estate I respectfully call attention to the fact that the sales tax took $16,921.97 out of Pickaway County in the first three months of this year.

Saw N. E. Reichelderfer, the banker, walking on air and learned he had made a hole in one at the Country Club. Number two. Met Jim Mowery and he told of putting 900 catfish in the pond at the County Home. What sport they will provide for county guests, both oldsters and children. All other fishermen should be banned from angling in that pond.

Bob White, of Lancaster, flew here to visit the Irv Kinseys. Circled their home several times and finally dipped low enough to learn that their car was not in the garage, so he did not land. Later he put down at Columbus airport where he houses his ship, and there he found the Kinseys come to visit him.

Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

CRUCIAL BATTLES IN SERBIA

WASHINGTON—In interpreting war news from the Balkans the basic thing to watch is the amount of advance scored by the Nazis in the extreme south of Serbia and in Greece. Advances in northern Yugoslavia mean nothing.

In fact, the border between northern Yugoslavia and Hungary was not even fortified, and the Yugoslav army always planned to evacuate that area immediately if its own counter-attack were rolled back. This part of the country—Croatia and Slovenia—once under the Austro-Hungarian Empire, consists of broad, rolling plains, among the most fertile in Europe, and similar to the corn belt of Iowa and Kansas.

In this section, the Yugoslav general staff did not even build pill boxes; and before the war started, the bulk of the army was evacuated south except for a skeleton force to fight a rear-guard action or stage a lightning raid on Hungary.

But in Serbia proper, which is in the south, the army worked feverishly to strengthen fortifications along the Bulgarian border. The Greeks also were extremely active.

Chief Allied worry was that the Greeks would be forced to fight on two fronts, and with a much smaller army than the Yugoslavs. This is the point where the greatest shock strength of the Nazi army has been thrown—in an effort to cut through Greece to the south of the Yugoslav army, thus getting behind it, or to force the Yugoslavs to withdraw, thus exposing the Greek flank.

MARCH TO ADRIATIC

Another part of Yugoslavia to watch is Montenegro and along the Albanian frontier. For years, Serbian officers have been itching to march as victors down to the Adriatic. Once in 1915 they marched there defeated. And having no great love for the Albanians and even less for the Italians, they are throwing an important part of the Yugoslav army into Albania.

NOTE—Yugoslavia, or "Land of the Southern Slavs", is made up of Serbia, Croatia, Slovenia, Montenegro, Dalmatia, Bosnia and Herzegovina—where, at Sarajevo, the last war started. All except Serbia and Montenegro were under the Austro-Hungarian Empire before 1918.

Montenegro, or "Land of the Black Mountain", maintained its own king for centuries, never was conquered by the Turks. But in 1918 it joined Yugoslavia, much to the disgust of more independent Montenegrins. The language of all is about the same.

"Where It Hurts"

trouble. Experienced physicians have too often seen someone operated on for appendicitis when in truth the trouble was pneumonia away up in the chest.

But even the most intelligent patients give up the idea only under duress. In fact we have a painting made by Albrecht Dürer, which he sent to his doctor showing himself pointing to the exact spot where he had the pain.

Weakness a Symptom
Weakness, which is next to pain the commonest symptom of the human race, is usually localized by the patient in the nervous system. But this is a very incomplete concept of so complex a symptom. There is a growing tendency among medical scientists to regard the body as a unit, as a whole rather than a collection of parts. We used to think of heart disease as a disease of the heart, and kidney disease as a disease of the kidney, and goitre as a disease of the thyroid gland. But more and more we have come to see that in most diseases the whole body is sick, and it must be regarded and treated as a whole. Thus the rejection of the body which typifies this best is that general bodily feeling of weakness.

Whole Organism Affected
It is, for instance, a typical symptom of heart disease. It originates in this case in the muscles because they do not get enough blood—because the circulation is deficient. We learn then that heart disease is of no consequence so long as it is local (such as a valvular defect only), that it only becomes of moment when the heart muscle is diseased and all the blood vessels are also affected. Then the circulation is deficient in the muscles and oxygen exchange in the lungs is lowered and the entire organism is out of kilter.

In my youth we used to hear of Bright's disease, and everybody regarded it as due to disease in the kidneys and in the kidneys alone. But the present conception of kidney disease, of nephritis, is that the kidneys are diseased only as part of a general process—the eyes are usually quite as much involved as the kidneys, every group of little capillary blood vessels being involved just as much as the capillaries in the kidney.

Even cancer, which is so often regarded as a purely local disease, may really originate from a general bodily derangement which manifests itself only at the site where the cancer begins to grow. In fact, certain cancers of the bone have proved to be due to disturbances of one group of the ductless glands, the parathyroids.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q. G. W.:—"I have a discharge in my ear and it runs over once in a while. It seems to be wax. I have tried sweet oil and other remedies. It gives me a great deal of bother. What should I do?"

Answer—Wax in the ear may be a very simple problem, but it also may be very complicated and dangerous. In the early stages, your treatment is quite logical, but when the wax gets hard, it may become almost like stone and should be removed. I would suggest that you see a doctor who can take an ear speculum and look in and detach the hard wax.

SYNOPSIS

TOM AND BETSY FORMAN inherit Holeyon Island from invalid Jordan Markham, who was found shot to death. Markham had established the spot as a "honeymoon island," but his ideas had been opposed bitterly by crooked business associates who wanted to make it a base for smuggling aliens into the United States. NATALIE SCHUYLER, moneyed society girl, and BROOKS MARCHBANKS, possessor of high social position, but not much money, are married.

Natalie and Brooks spend the first night of their honeymoon apart.

CHAPTER TEN

IT WAS LATE afternoon when they found the wrecked car. A battered little flivver, turned over on its side, its wheels still spinning helplessly. The accident couldn't have happened more than scant seconds before. A girl lay face down, a few feet from the car; a man was pinned beneath the wheel.

Brooks and Natalie ran to them. The girl was still alive and tried dazedly to sit up as Natalie knelt beside her; but for a long moment when Natalie and Brooks had managed to get the man from behind the wheel of the wrecked car, they felt quite sure that he was dead. Brooks' flask came into play, a little of the stinging liquid was forced down the boy's throat. He moaned and turned his head away.

The girl huddled on the ground beside him, unable herself to walk, but forgetting her own pain in her frantic anxiety for the boy. Other cars had come along now and Natalie and Brooks saw the boy's limp body laid gently on the back seat of a car, the girl lifted in to huddle beside him, trying to ease with her own tortured body the agonizing jolting that he must receive on the way to the hospital in the nearest town.

"We've got to go along, Brooks. I've got to know how badly they are hurt," said Natalie, looking down at the pitiful little wrecked car, the two cheap suitcases, one of them tied with string, that was all the baggage the car held. "Of course," said Brooks, as he put those two suitcases in the rumble where his and her expensive hand-made luggage seemed to stare in haughty disdain.

When they reached the hospital, the boy was on the operating table. The girl waited outside the door, refusing any attention for herself until she could know what was being done for the boy.

Natalie went swiftly to her and put an arm about her, saying gently, "You must come and let them see how badly you're hurt!" The girl put a shaking hand to her tumbled, dark curls and said unsteadily, "No, no—I'm all right. He's hurt so much worse. I'll be all right."

She looked swiftly about the hospital corridor, the nurses moving on silent feet, the baskets of flowers that could be glimpsed through open doors, and her face was pale, white as she whispered, "This must be terribly expensive—and Johnny and I haven't got but twenty dollars."

"Oh, didn't you know?" Natalie said in swift, consoling tones. "You use of sweet oil will not move it. I really think you need a doctor who can take an ear speculum and look in and detach the hard wax."

A look of such abject relief touched the girl's white face that Natalie set her teeth hard against the little gasp of pity. To be terribly ill, to see someone you love desperately hurt, and not be able to pay for the needed medical attention—what a ghastly thing. Natalie told herself, appalled that such things could be.

"Are you—are you sure?" whispered the girl faintly, looking up at Brooks for added reassurance. "Certainly sure," answered Brooks with a heartening grin. "Why don't you two go along and let somebody find out how much damage you suffered? I'll stick here and bring you the first news."

Natalie turned sharply, startled by his tone. The look in his eyes told her that he was hurt and angry, out of all proportion, she felt, to the cause.

"Darling, I'm sorry—" she stammered.

"It's quite all right," said Brooks harshly. "It's only that the hospi-

about Johnny that anybody gives out."

"Could I go right here—across the hall?" pleaded the girl.

"Of course you can," answered Brooks firmly, and turned to a passing nurse. "How about having somebody take a look at this young lady? She's the other half of that wreck, you know."

"Certainly," said the nurse. "This way, my dear."

"I'll see the doctor," said Natalie with a quick little smile to the girl going reluctantly away with the nurse.

When the door had closed behind the girl, Natalie turned to Brooks. "How do I arrange about their bill—seeing to it that they're not frightened or worried?" she demanded.

"At the office," said Brooks, and tucked his hand beneath her elbow. "Come along."

They went swiftly along the corridor to an office where an efficient-looking middle-aged woman behind a flat-topped desk gave them a curious, interested look to add to her professional smile.

"I'm Natalie Schuyler," Natalie said. "The couple brought in a few moments ago—he's in the emergency operating room, and the nurse is getting HER ready for an examination—I just wanted to tell you that they are to have the very best of everything, and you're to send the bill to me."

"Thank you, Miss Schuyler," said the nurse. For just a moment her eyes turned to Brooks, who stood back of Natalie and whose face now was suddenly strained, a little white line about his mouth. "That's very generous of you. Of course we've no idea just yet what will be necessary."

"It doesn't matter. They're to have it, whatever it is, and the very best," said Natalie in the tone of one accustomed to giving orders and having them obeyed. "And they are not to know that I'm paying the bill. They must think that it is due to the fact that they are emergency cases and that due provision is made for that sort of thing."

"I understand, Miss Schuyler," began the nurse.

Brooks said, with a queer, harsh tone in his voice, "The lady happens to be Mrs. Marchbanks, even though it's a matter so trifling she's forgotten it."

Natalie turned sharply, startled by his tone. The look in his eyes told her that he was hurt and angry, out of all proportion, she felt, to the cause.

"Darling, I'm sorry—" she stammered.

"It's quite all right," said Brooks harshly. "It's only that the hospital will want the LEGAL name of the person who is playing Lady Bountiful."

Natalie caught her breath, for there was a not too carefully hidden taunt in the last that was like a small, but stinging, blow. Before she could manage an answer, Brooks said politely, "And now, hadn't you better be getting back to your post? Your—er—er guest will be worrying about you."

Natalie couldn't explain, apologize—not there in front of that curious, avid-eyed nurse. And as she walked beside Brooks along the corridor, Natalie's heart quailed a little; she HAD hurt and humiliated Brooks. Quite unnecessarily. She could just as easily have said to the nurse, "We will be responsible for the bill," and thus have included Brooks. She should have said, "I'm Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks." But the habit of years had been so strong—she'd been Natalie Schuyler for 22 years, and she'd only been Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks for 24 hours! Surely Brooks would understand that she had spoken impulsively, that she hadn't deliberately meant to humiliate him, to flout her own wealth.

But there was no chance to explain. A doctor was coming toward them, straight from the emergency operating room. And he had news.

"The young man is very badly hurt," he explained with merciful brevity. "There is a brain concussion, serious internal injuries. Unfortunately for his recuperative powers, he is undernourished, badly run down. I'd say that he has a slightly better than fifty-fifty chance of pulling through, given every possible advantage."

"He is to have that, Doctor," said Natalie instantly. "That is, my husband and I wish to be responsible for all expenses. You are to go the limit—whatever he needs or you think will help him in the slightest."

The doctor looked from one to the other of these handsome, expensively clad young people, and he said politely, "They are friends of yours—perhaps servants?"

"We never saw them in our lives until we came upon their wrecked car a couple of hours ago," said Natalie. "My husband and I are on our honeymoon, and—well, we felt it unbearable that anybody should be unhappy while we are so very happy."

"That's very generous of you, Mrs.—"

"Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks," said Natalie, slipping her hand into Brooks' with a little coaxing gesture. He was too courteous to reject her plea; he simply ignored it. (To Be Continued)

ONE HUNDRED DAYS

If some newspaper readers feel that the press is harping too insistently on the war string just now, consider this:

John D. Biggers of Toledo, one of the many big business men now serving their country for a dollar a year, says we have 100 days to decide this Battle for Civilization—the greatest battle in human history. And maybe he is right. We don't dare assume that he isn't.

These days, he says, are "precious" and "no one knows how much they may mean in the history of the world." When captains of industry agree with statesmen and military men, the press and public must listen and help, in all their different ways, to preserve the civilization we have known and the free opportunity that still lives in America.

This means moral compulsion on every American capable of understanding. In extreme danger it would mean stronger compulsions, industrial and otherwise.

"I don't believe in a democracy forcing anybody to do anything until we have exhausted all means of persuasion," he says.

It shouldn't be necessary in America, in a time like this, to bring compulsion on anybody of understanding what is going on in the world and how close our civilization is to a great catastrophe.

LAKE-MAKING

ILLINOIS expects to have 30 new, man-made lakes within the next few years. They will be created by using springs, damming small rivers and constructing spillways on properties under state, county or municipal control. Communities in need of improved water supplies will be given preference in the location of the lakes.

The finished lakes will average 50 acres in area, varying from five to 200 according to the special needs of the region in which they are built.

Such work serves a number of purposes, including flood control, check of soil erosion, recreation and water supply for human beings, and improvement of scenery. There have been artificial lakes before in many parts of the world, but creating them in such numbers in the middle west is something new in conservation.

An editorial statement that the Balkan nations "may make history by fighting, by bargaining, by surrendering" suggests that it would be hard not to make history these days.

It cannot be expected that even our rich nation can "maintain its standard of living" completely in these times.

Almanac note: About this time, look for another ideological blood-bath in Europe.

All other fishermen should be banned from angling in that pond.

Bob White, of Lancaster, flew here to visit the Irv Kinseys. Circled their home several times and finally dipped low enough to learn that their car was not in the garage, so he did not land. Later he put down at Columbus airport where he houses his ship, and there he found the Kinseys come to visit him.

Dropped in on Earl Smith, the barrister, and in his office inspected the general warranty deed for the Memorial Hall lots. Can't read my notes now, but I am guessing that the scribbling means "filed July 12, 1855." All hand written, that deed, and a big one too. Signed by Myra G. Ballard, executrix of the William W. Summer must be here right now. That or M. E. Carrothers is too optimistic. Saw him cleaning his porch furniture. Certainly, most folk are honest.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

CRUCIAL BATTLES IN SERBIA

WASHINGTON—In interpreting war news from the Balkans the basic thing to watch is the amount of advance scored by the Nazis in the extreme south of Serbia and in Greece. Advances in northern Yugoslavia mean nothing.

In fact, the border between northern Yugoslavia and Hungary was not even fortified, and the Yugoslav army always planned to evacuate that area immediately if its own counter-attack were rolled back. This part of the country—Croatia and Slovenia—once under the Austro-Hungarian Empire, consists of broad, rolling plains, among the most fertile in Europe, and similar to the corn belt of Iowa and Kansas.

In this section, the Yugoslav general staff did not even build pill boxes; and before the war started, the bulk of the army was evacuated south except for a skeleton force to fight a rear-guard action or stage a lightning raid on Hungary.

But in Serbia proper, which is in the south, the army worked feverishly to strengthen fortifications along the Bulgarian border. The Greeks also were extremely active.

Chief Allied worry was that the Greeks would be forced to fight on two fronts, and with a much smaller army than the Yugoslavs. This is the point where the greatest shock strength of the Nazi army has been thrown—in an effort to cut through Greece to the south of the Yugoslav army, thus getting behind it, or to force the Yugoslavs to withdraw, thus exposing the Greek flank.

MARCH TO ADRIATIC

Another part of Yugoslavia to watch is Montenegro and along the Albanian frontier. For years, Serbian officers have been itching to march as victors down to the Adriatic. The girl put a shaking hand to her tumbling dark curls and said unsteadily, "No, no—I'm all right. He's hurt so much worse. I'll be all right."

She looked swiftly about the hospital corridor, the nurses moving on silent feet, the baskets of flowers that could be glimpsed through open doors, and her face was paper-white as she whispered, "This must be terribly expensive—and Johnny and I haven't got but twenty dollars."

"Oh, didn't you know?" Natalie said in swift, consoling tones. "You and Johnny are emergency cases. Hospitals never make charges for emergency cases! There won't be any charge at all."

A look of such abject relief touched the girl's white face that Natalie set her teeth hard against the little gasp of pity. To be terribly ill, to see someone you love desperately hurt, and not be able to pay for the needed medical attention—what a ghastly thing. Natalie told herself, appalled that such things could be.

"Are you—are you—sure?" whispered the girl faintly, looking up at Brooks for added reassurance.

"Certainly sure," answered Brooks with a heartening grin.

"Why don't you go along and let somebody find out how much damage you suffered? I'll stick here and bring you the first news

The girl huddled on the ground beside the boy, as Brooks and Natalie tried to help.

about Johnny that anybody gives out."

"Could I go right here—across the hall?" pleaded the girl.

"Of course you can," answered Brooks firmly, and turned to a passing nurse. "How about having somebody take a look at this young lady? She's the other half of that wreck, you know."

"Certainly," said the nurse. "This way, my dear."

"I'll see the doctor," said Natalie with a quick little smile to the girl going reluctantly away with the nurse.

When the door had closed behind the girl, Natalie turned to Brooks. "How do I arrange about their bill—seeing to it that they're not frightened or worried?" she demanded.

"At the office," said Brooks, and tucked his hand beneath her elbow. "Come along."

They went swiftly along the corridor to an office where an efficient-looking middle-aged woman behind a flat-topped desk gave them a curious, interested look to add to her professional smile.

"I'm Natalie Schuyler," Natalie said. "The couple brought in a few moments ago—he's in the emergency operating room, and the nurse is getting HER ready for an examination—I just wanted to tell you that they are to have the very best of everything, and you're to send the bill to me."

"Thank you, Miss Schuyler," said the nurse. For just a moment her eyes turned to Brooks, who stood back of Natalie and whose face now was suddenly strained, a little white line about his mouth. "That's very generous of you. Of course we've no idea just yet what will be necessary."

"It doesn't matter. They're to have it, whatever it is, and the very best," said Natalie in the tone of one accustomed to giving orders and having them obeyed. "And they are not to know that I'm paying the bill. They must think that it is due to the fact that they are emergency cases and that due provision is made for that sort of thing."

"I understand, Miss Schuyler," began the nurse.

Brooks said, with a queer, harsh tone in his voice, "The lady happens to be Mrs. Marchbanks, even though it's a matter so trifling she's forgotten it."

Natalie turned sharply, startled by his tone. The look in his eyes told her that he was hurt and angry, out of all proportion, she felt, to the cause.

"Darling, I'm sorry—" she stammered.

"It's quite all right," said Brooks harshly. "It's only that the hospital will want the LEGAL name of the person who is playing Lady Bountiful."

Natalie caught her breath, for there was a not too carefully hidden taunt in the last that was like a small, but stinging, blow. Before she could manage an answer, Brooks said politely, "And now, hadn't you better be getting back to your post? Your—er—guest will be worrying about you."

Natalie couldn't explain, apologize—not there in front of that curious, avid-eyed nurse. And as she walked beside Brooks along the corridor, Natalie's heart quailed a little; she HAD hurt and humiliated Brooks. Quite unnecessarily. She could just as easily have said to the nurse, "We will be responsible for the bill," and thus have included Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks. But the habit of years had been so strong—she'd been Natalie Schuyler for 22 years, and she'd only been Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks for 24 hours! Surely Brooks would understand that she hadn't spoken impulsively, that she hadn't deliberately meant to humiliate him, to flaunt her own wealth.

But there was no chance to explain. A doctor was coming toward them, straight from the emergency operating room. And he had news.

"The young man is very badly hurt," he explained with merciful briefness. "There is a brain concussion, serious internal injuries. Unfortunately for his recuperative powers, he is undernourished, badly run down. I'd say that he has a slightly better than fifty-fifty chance of pulling through, given every possible advantage."

"He is to have that, Doctor," said Natalie instantly. "That is, my husband and I wish to be responsible for all expenses. You are to go the limit—whatever he needs or you think will help him in the slightest."

The doctor looked from one to the other of the young, handsome, expensively clad young people, and he said politely, "They are friends of yours—perhaps servants?"

"We never saw them in our lives until we came upon their wrecked car a couple of hours ago," said Natalie. "My husband and I are on our honeymoon, and—well, he felt it unbearable that anybody should be unhappy while we are so very happy."

"That's very generous of you, Mrs.—"

"Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks," said Natalie, slipping her hand into Brooks' with a little coaxing gesture. He was too courteous to reject her plea; he simply ignored it. (To Be Continued)

Back on the Job with Bills All Paid

... how to feel like a million on a hundred or so

A YOUNG MACHINIST had just returned to full time work when suddenly he was bombarded with bills demanding payment of past due accounts. He sized up the situation, took out a loan, and paid up everything. He earned discounts for full settlement and had money left over to buy new clothes for himself and family. Now, less than one-tenth of his income is paying off his loan without a hitch.

morning to bring blazes under control. Large crowds gathering to witness results of a full-scale air attack on their city were cordoned off, behind emergency police lines.

Near the State Library, a building forming part of Berlin University adj. to the Kaiser Wilhelm I Palace, was hit and damaged.

The latest official visitor to Bellevue Palace was Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka of Japan. Some months ago, Soviet Premier and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov lived there on a journey to Berlin.

Another official announcement stated German planes last night "effectively raided" an English port and also an important British industrial center.

In addition, it was claimed, German planes sank eight merchant vessels totalling 46,000 tons and severely damaged three others aggregating 19,000 tons as well as a British destroyer during the last 24 hours.

These British losses, the announcement said, included a vessel of 20,000 tons.

This ship was described officially as a fully loaded enemy transport, which was sunk yesterday afternoon.

In addition, German planes seriously damaged a 15,000-ton vessel off the northern coast of Scotland, it was stated.

At Coventry during the Tuesday night raid, German authorities revealed, the railway station, a large gas tank and important aircraft plants were bombed.

Direct hits were said to have been scored on the British naval yard at Portsmouth, while stores, power works and other objectives were hit at Great Yarmouth.

Six RAF bases also were heavily damaged, it was stated.

A British Air Ministry communique stated:

"The bomber command attacked Berlin last night for three hours. Large fires were started in the center of the city, where powerful high explosives were seen to burst.

"Eindhoven and other objectives in northwest Germany also were attacked.

"During the hours of daylight yesterday railway traffic and a wireless station in Denmark was bombed.

"Last night offensive fighter patrols were active over occupied France where attacks were made with bombs and machine guns.

"Last night the coastal command bombed an aluminum works at Hoyanger and a daring low-level attack also was carried out against a naval unit at Brest.

(Editor's Note: The "naval unit referred to may have been either the German battle cruiser Scharnhorst or Gneisenau, which recently were reported at Brest.)

"In all these operations eight aircraft are missing. Eleven enemy raiders were destroyed last night."

It was learned that among the British fighter command aircraft which participated in last night's operations were a number of Douglas DB-7S, American-made craft known in England as Havoc.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., April 10—Killing and injuring large numbers of civilians and leaving hundreds more homeless, German raiders delivered an intense attack on the industrial city of Birmingham last night and early today.

Damage to commercial buildings and houses was widespread and fires broke out in scores of shops.

In many parts of Birmingham, where a rising casualty toll was feared, rescue squads this afternoon were still hunting among the ruins and extricating buried victims from the debris.

The raid started mildly but soon was whipped up to full fury by waves of raiders swooping in from every direction.

A continuous hail of incendiaries and then scores of high explosives poured down on the city, the latter of the heaviest caliber.

This afternoon modern commercial premises presented a sorry spectacle with their fronts spread across adjoining streets.

Eye-witnesses said that at least one German plane crashed in the Birmingham area after a brief clash with a Royal Air Force fighter.

able to bring several trainloads of wounded soldiers to safety before smashing the bridges, officials revealed.

A spokesman for the Greek Press Ministry announced that after the Yugoslavs withdrew on the southern Serbian front, a German motorized column succeeded in breaking through to effect occupation of the port of Salonika.

"This is merely a sad episode," the spokesman declared, "and more than ever Greece—believing in final victory—is resolved to fight the war to the end.

"We always knew this war would be difficult and we always kept in mind that there would be glorious as well as difficult moments."

Greek military circles said they consider German occupation of eastern Macedonia and Thrace as a German success, but not one which will have a decisive effect on the final outcome of the conflict.

They said this German thrust had been expected and that plans to deal with it had been formulated long before the fighting began.

Evacuation Favored

Furthermore, these quarters pointed out, the Greek general staff always had advocated evacuation of eastern Macedonia and Thrace in the event of an attack by Germany and in anticipation of this eventually had perfected plans for evacuation of the area long ago.

Had Yugoslavia not entered the war, they declared, these territories would have been evacuated the moment a German attack was launched.

An official communique stated that the Greek troops cut off in Macedonia still are fighting.

The Athens radio announced that under present circumstances a "decisive battle will be given where strategic conditions demand."

It added:

"The war goes on and will continue to go on.

"We know how to fight and won't be influenced by unfavorable turns."

LOSS IN BALKANS MAY BRING SOME BRITISH CHANGES

LONDON, April 10—Only an Allied victory on the Greek front can save the Balkan situation for Britain and prevent a harsh—although not dangerous—reaction at home, it became apparent today.

Unless the German drive is stopped by some strategy undisclosed thus far, military and diplomatic heads will roll.

The inevitable result, according to well-informed circles, is that Britain will profit by another setback. Because, it was said, steps must and will be taken to compensate for a defeat in Greece and the continued retreat in Libya.

Some military observers frankly believe that the Allies were caught unprepared by the speed of the German advance in Greece. Prime Minister Winston Churchill admitted in the House of Commons yesterday that General Sir Archibald P. Wavell was surprised by the speed and striking power of German mechanized forces in Libya.

Now, with British resistance stiffening, experts believe that a line will be consolidated from the Greco-Albanian borders to a point on the Aegean Coast southwest of Salonika.

This will give the Allies three natural mountain ranges on which to install their defenses. If the Germans break these defenses, however, the Allies will be trapped at the bottom of Greece.

Should this occur, the miracle of a "second Dunkirk" is virtually out of the question, due to the presence of Italian-German naval forces and weakness of the Royal Air Force's eastern command in the face of strong axis air detachments.

the defense of that territory as well as for the defense of the American continent.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that while the Danish government at present is powerless to act in protection of its territory in the Western Hemisphere "we propose to make sure that when the German invasion of Denmark has ended, Greenland will remain a Danish colony."

"Meanwhile, we earnestly hope for the quick liberation of Denmark from her present invaders," the President said.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early, in an informal explanation, declared that "this agreement puts Greenland in the same category as Canada and all of the islands off the American coast—it will be defended if attacked."

An official State Department announcement disclosing this important move said:

"The agreement recognizes that as a result of the present European war there is danger that Greenland may be converted into a point of aggression against nations of the American continent, and accepts the responsibility on behalf of the United States of assisting Greenland in maintenance of the present status."

purchase of the Danish ships, but he postponed it until tomorrow because of the death of Sen. Shepard (D) Tex.

Walsh, who bitterly opposed the original trade of 50 overage destroyers with Great Britain for naval and air bases, said that another "sacrifice" may permanently weaken "our first line of defense."

"I am opposed to giving more naval vessels for conveying because it means further involvement in the European war, and may be the final step to put us completely in the European war," Walsh added.

As administration leaders admitted that "the problem of convoys" is pressing closer day by day, they predicted that congress will give immediate approval of the President's request to purchase the Danish ships, taken over with those of Italy and Germany for "protective" purposes.

It is expected that the President will turn the Danish ships over to the American merchant marine, and release other cargo vessels to Great Britain or lease them directly to Britain.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, sought to assure colleagues that if President Roosevelt does decide on convoys that "the question will be presented to congress for approval."

Had Yugoslavia not entered the war, they declared, these territories would have been evacuated the moment a German attack was launched.

An official communication stated that the Greek troops cut off in Macedonia still are fighting.

The Athens radio announced that under present circumstances a "decisive battle will be given where strategic conditions demand."

It added: "The war goes on and will continue to go on.

"We know how to fight and won't be influenced by unfavorable turns."

LOSS IN BALKANS MAY BRING SOME BRITISH CHANGES

LONDON, April 10—Only an Allied victory on the Greek front can save the Balkan situation for Britain and prevent a harsh—although not dangerous—reaction at home, it became apparent today.

Unless the German drive is stopped by some strategy undisclosed thus far, military and diplomatic heads will roll.

The inevitable result, according to well-informed circles, is that Britain will profit by another setback. Because, it was said, steps must and will be taken to compensate for a defeat in Greece and the continued retreat in Libya.

Some military observers frankly believe that the Allies were caught unprepared by the speed of the German advance in Greece. Prime Minister Winston Churchill admitted in the House of Commons yesterday that General Sir Archibald P. Wavell was surprised by the speed and striking power of German mechanized forces in Libya.

Now, with British resistance stiffening, experts believe that a line will be consolidated from the Greco-Albanian borders to a point on the Aegean Coast south-west of Salonika.

This will give the Allies three natural mountain ranges on which to install their defenses. If the Germans break these defenses, however, the Allies will be trapped at the bottom of Greece. Should this occur, the miracle of a "second Dunkirk" is virtually out of the question, due to the presence of Italian-German naval forces and weakness of the Royal Air Force's eastern command in the face of strong axis air detachments.

Gets 21 Years

STANDING at the bar in a Louisville, Ky., criminal court, John C. Maas, 44-year-old swimming pool owner, is sentenced to concurrent prison terms of 21 and five years after pleading guilty to a charge of slaying his wife, Nadyne. Mass shot his 21-year-old wife on a Louisville street because, he said, she would not bear him any children. A policeman was wounded by one of the bullets.

25 INJURED WHEN SPEEDING TRAIN GOES OFF RAILS

HOMERSVILLE, Ga., April 10—Approximately 25 persons were injured today, none believed critically, when the Southwind, a streamliner of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was derailed about 12 miles west of Homersville.

The train was operating over the Atlantic coastline route. It derailed between Chicago and Miami. A hurried search through the overturned cars failed to reveal any fatalities.

Four coaches overturned, reports said, while a fifth car left the rails but did not overturn. Two cars and the locomotive remained on the tracks.

A broken rail was blamed for the accident.

Railroad officials said 105 persons, in addition to the train crew, were aboard at the time of the accident.

BOY SCOUT EXECUTIVE ON PROGRAM AT ROTARY CLUB

Edgar Wolfe, Boy Scout field executive for the Central Ohio Area, outlined the Sea Scouting program to Rotarians at their luncheon in the American Hotel Thursday noon.

The Sea Scouting program, he said, designed for character building and citizenship training, is of practical use to older boys in the community as a means of adapting them to camp life and to association with other boys. Its program occupies the minds of young men and is effective in combating crime, he pointed out.

During the earlier part of the meeting Charles May talked to new Rotarians on the purpose and aims of Rotary.

the defense of that territory as well as for the defense of the American continent.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that while the Danish government at present is powerless to act in protection of its territory in the Western Hemisphere "we propose to make sure that when the German invasion of Denmark has ended, Greenland will remain a Danish colony."

"Meanwhile, we earnestly hope for the quick liberation of Denmark from her present invaders," the President said.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early, in an informal explanation, declared that "this agreement puts Greenland in the same category as Canada and all of the islands off the American coast—it will be defended if attacked."

An official State Department announcement disclosing this important move said:

"The agreement recognizes that as a result of the present European war there is danger that Greenland may be converted into a point of aggression against nations of the American continent, and accepts the responsibility on behalf of the United States of assisting Greenland in maintenance of the present status."

Davis said he had hopes the theft was the work of boys who had glimpsed the model hanging from the ceiling of the engineering room, but that there was "a chance it was stolen by somebody who wanted to see how it was made." The wing structure, he said, is used on navy seaplanes and also on an army bomber.

purchase of the Danish ships, but he postponed it until tomorrow because of the death of Sen. Shepard (D) Tex.

Walsh, who bitterly opposed the original trade of 50 overage destroyers with Great Britain for naval and air bases, said that another "sacrifice" may permanently weaken "our first line of defense."

"I am opposed to giving more naval vessels for conveying because it means further involvement in the European war, and may be the final step to put us completely in the European war," Walsh added.

As administration leaders admitted that "the problem of convoys" is pressing closer day by day, they predicted that congress will give immediate approval of the President's request to purchase the Danish ships, taken over with those of Italy and Germany for "protective" purposes.

It is expected that the President will turn the Danish ships over to the American merchant marine, and release other cargo vessels to Great Britain or lease them directly to Britain.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, sought to assure colleagues that if President Roosevelt does decide on convoys that "the question will be presented to congress for approval."

Promoters Deluge Louis With Offers Of Fights

Alluring Bids May Send Bomber Into Ring More Often Than Planned

By Pat Robinson
NEW YORK, April 10—The gold rush was on in earnest today as fight promoters from coast to coast deluged Mike Jacobs with guarantees totaling more than $1,000,000 for Joe Louis's services.

The stampede was started by Joe's fight with Tony Musto which drew $53,000 with a $6 top—a record for St. Louis. Even Jacobs, who knows what it is to have a million dollar gate, was bewildered by the size of the offers, and, amazingly, most of the promoters don't care who Joe's opponent may be just so the champion agrees to fight for them.

Jacobs could stage a title fight every week for the rest of the year, and he might do it, too, if Louis could stand the strain of continual warfare. However, some of the offers received are so alluring, the champion may be enticed into fighting more often than the once a month campaign he has laid out for himself.

Tom Gallery is begging Joe to accept $150,000 for a fight with Bob Pastor in Los Angeles. Tom Packs guarantees Joe double the amount he paid him for the Musto affair if only he will agree to go back to St. Louis for a battle with Buddy Baer.

Les (Pup) Thomas, wealthy Texan, who pilots his own five-passenger $18,000 plane, wants to guarantee Joe a $200,000 gate for a fight with Babe Hunt of Clovis, New Mexico, which is just across the Texas line. This is the same Thomas who handed Max Baer $10,000 for a soft touch in Lubbock, Texas.

Walter Briggs would like to see Louis fight Lou Nova in Detroit but first he would like to stage a battle between Abe Simon and Nova with the winner to meet Louis.

Ray Alvis in Washington and Ed Bang in Cleveland are both hot on the trail of the champion. Jacobs is still undecided about future bouts. He has Simon scheduled for Louis in Madison Square Garden next month and Billy Conn tentatively set for a title shot in June and Lou Nova in September. But he may switch these around.

Can Be Taken

Both Nova and Conn are clamoring for the June date because each of them sincerely believes that Louis is about ready to be taken. Strangely enough, many others, deluged by Joe's lackadaisical fights against Simon and Musto, think the champion is slipping. However, they probably will see a different Louis when he is in there with anybody he considers a possible threat to his title. Meanwhile, Joe "ain't mad at nobody" and he is content to go along dragging down his 40 percent of those $50,000 purses. And it goes without saying that Jacobs is more than content for his share of the Louis-Musto, Buddy Baer-Galento, Max Baer-Lou Nova and Billy Conn-Barlund fights—all staged within five days. No wonder these other promoters want a little of the same kind of gravy.

DANNING TAKES UP OLD JOB AND SMACKS PAIR

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., April 10—Catcher Harry Danning, recently converted into an outfielder for the New York Giants, was celebrating his return to the mitt and mask today. Danning blasted out two home runs yesterday when the New Yorkers, after four straight setbacks by the Indians, beat Cleveland 6 to 3. The teams continue their exhibition business today with a meeting at Charleson, W. Va.

Bob Feller Obstacle In Path of Yankee Team

NEW YORK, April 10—As a prelude to the opening of the baseball season next week, we wish to step out there today with a cluster of predictions, hopeful all the while that those who read this will remember the ones that come true and forget the rest. Some of these are long shot stabs, the rest probabilities, but in every instance you can find baseball men who will agree that all of them could turn out as we call 'em.

In fact, we got the ideas talking to baseball men on our recent swing through the Florida training camps.

The New York Yankees should win the American League pennant, but they face an obstacle in the person of 22-year-old Bob Feller, who figures to be a 30-game winner, barring injury or illness, and that may bring the Cleveland Indians in, according to many observers. Although he won 27 games last year, he hasn't even reached his peak.

As for the Yankees, they will attain all the popularity they lacked last season when they struggled and stumbled through the race. They will be interesting to watch with that revamped infield.

Greenberg Key
The Detroit Tigers will go good if they don't lose Hank Greenberg, but don't appear to have the stuff this time, although Buck Newsom could have his best season. We will tab him, anyhow, as a 22-game winner. He has a sneaking notion that he will do better than that.

Over in the National League, we grant the Cincinnati Reds 60 victories on the efforts of Bucky Walters, Paul Derringer and Gene Thompson, who combined to win 58 last season. We wouldn't be surprised if they should win even 65.

In any case, the Reds should out-last the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers, and the latter two seem doomed to more disappointment. They have a good club. But they have come along at a time when the Reds are at their peak and when the Cards are on the verge of getting hot. A good tip on the Cards is: Watch their young pitchers.

The New York Giants won't figure in the National League race more than briefly and surely

REICHELDERFER SCORES ACE AT PICKAWAY CLUB

Banker Puts Spoon Shot Into Cup On No. 2; Course's Fourth

N. E. Reichelderfer, executive vice president of the Circleville Savings and Banking Co., accomplished one of golf's masterpieces on the Pickaway Country Club course Wednesday afternoon when he scored a hole-in-one on the club's No. 2 hole.

Reichelderfer, one of the club's low handicap players, was playing with T. O. Gilliland, club president, and Dr. C. G. Stewart when he drove his spoon shot in the direction of No. 2 flag. The ball went on a straight line into the cup, not touching ground from the time it left the tee until it wedged itself between the pin and the side of the cup.

No. 2 hole is 155 yards. The hole-in-one is the fourth scored in the 13-year history of the course. Freeman Jones, Lawrence J. Johnson and Frank Marion all scoring aces on the same hole.

Warmer weather has sent a large number of golfers to the course during the last few days, and a large turnout is expected next Sunday when the official opening of the course is scheduled. Ned Landis, chairman of the greens committee, and Dan Taggart, the club's new pro, are planning a Handicap tournament to be conducted starting at noon. This is the first of a series of tournaments to be staged during the year.

The club's dining room and the 19th Hole will be opened, also, next Sunday.

The course is in the finest condition ever observed at this time of the year, Greenskeeper Sam Lutz having all fairways and greens in mid-summer shape.

Arlington Winner In 8 To 4 Match

Circleville High golfers put up a real fight but couldn't overcome the Upper Arlington team Wednesday afternoon on the Pickaway Country Club course. The Golden Bears won three matches, lost one and gained a victory by an 8-4 score.

All the matches were closely contested, only a few strokes separating the two teams in total score, but the Arlington lads came through when the chips were down to gain their victory.

Dick Barr, No. 1 man for the Golden Bears, was medalist with a total of 81 strokes on nine hole scores of 39 and 42. Johnny Woods, who lost three points to Barr, was best for Circleville with 84.

The lineups:		Circleville-4
Arlington-8	3	Woods	0
Barr	39, 42-81	41, 43-84
Sohl	41, 45-86	45, 45-90	1/2
Rosenberns	46, 46-92	45, 44-89	3
Putnam	44, 45-89	46, 45-91	1/2

And as a parting shot, neither race will be decided by more than four or five games, with the fights tough every step of the way.

Henri Cochet, France's former Davis Cup Tennis star, thinks table tennis is an excellent preparation for the game on the standard court. Writing in "Paris Soir," he said, "Table tennis requires mental work that will contribute to the intellectual development of your game."

ST. PAUL, April 10—Mort Lindsey of Stamford, Conn., one of the best known bowlers in the country, will lead an all-star squad of Stamford Keglers to the alleys tonight at the American Bowling Congress.

Lindsey sports a 198 average for 28 years in big time competition and in the doubles event will team with his partner of 25 years, Joe Porto, whose average for that span is 196.

Also on today's schedule is the appearance of Bernie Bierman, head football coach at the University of Minnesota, who will pilot a five-man squad of Gopher mentors.

Minnesota bowlers monopolized the alleys yesterday and there were no changes among the leaders.

MEDWICK, REISER CLOUT; PEEWEE REESE INJURED

BALTIMORE, Md., April 10—Two homers by Joe Medwick and another by Pete Reiser iced away a 5-2 victory for the Brooklyn Dodgers over New York's Yankees, but the Dodgers today were suffering most. Harold (Pee-wee) Reese, Dodger infielder, aggravated an old foot injury while sliding home in the game, an examination, however, led physicians to think Reese will be ready to start the regular season with the Flatbush fellows. The teams renew their spring series today at Wilmington, Del.

Sid Luckman, star quarterback of the Chicago National League professional football team, is secretary-treasurer of a Brooklyn warehouse business during the off-season.

DERRINGER GOES TO CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, April 10—Paul Derringer, Bill McKechnie's probable choice for the mound assignment in the opener of the regular league schedule next Tuesday, was to face the Boston Red Sox today as the World Champion Cincinnati Reds met the bean-towners for the 15th time this Spring.

The Reds, playing their first game in the home town, came from behind yesterday to capture the contest with the Sox, 9 to 7. Seven runs in the eighth frame proved the winning margin for the World champs.

Johnny Vander Meer started for the Reds but his wildness enabled the Sox to score two runs in the first frame, three more in the fifth and two in the seventh. He was relieved by Johnny Hutchins, who silenced the Red Sox attack and got credit for the win.

The Reds got five of their seven runs in the big eighth off Joe Dobson. Cecil Hughson relieved him and Jimmy Gleason hit his first pitch in the right field bleachers to score Bobby Mattick ahead of him.

The Sox were expected to send either Mike Ryba or Herb Hash to the mound today.

LEE TO CONFER WITH CUB BOSS ABOUT HIS PAY

CHICAGO, April 10—Asserting he is in better physical condition than in several years and hopeful of making a strong comeback this season, Bill Lee, one of the Chicago Cubs' two holdouts, was ready to talk salary today with Bruin General Manager James T. Gallagher.

The big right handed pitcher earned $17,500 last season, when he won only nine games and lost 17, and for 1941 has been offered a reduction to $12,500 which he so far has refused to accept.

"I'll admit I had a bad year in 1940," said Lee before he saw Gallagher, "but what about all the good years I had when I don't think I was overpaid. All I want is to be paid what I'm worth."

Gallagher has insisted Lee will sign for $12,500 "or else." He indicated there would be no further bargaining either with Lee or with the club's other holdout, Outfielder Hank Leiber, who is still at his Phoenix, Ariz., home.

These industrial fighters should get together and sing, "I am an American."

COLUMBUS, April 10—Ohio high school basketball fans shelled out $167,609.56 to witness the various county district, sectional and state tournaments this year, according to the final report released today by H. R. Townsend, athletic commissioner.

County tournaments netted $82,977.77; district and sectional tournaments $67,397.51, and the state tournament $19,234.18, Townsend said.

The state association's share of the receipts totaled $18,584.16.

tax is due for an upward overhauling.

Also certain to be kited again are income taxes, and the so-called "nuisance" taxes — levies on liquor, tobacco, and tickets. Administration chiefs would like to avoid this, but see no other handy source of big revenue. The alternative is a general sales tax, which has considerable backing on Capitol Hill, but is strongly opposed by President Roosevelt.

Present plans call for laying the tax question before Congress next Monday from its two-week recess. The Treasury will submit a number of "formulas" for its consideration.

ALLIS-CHALMERS PEACE

For 19 hours last week end, five members of the Defense Mediation Board sat with labor and employers behind closed doors, battling to settle the Allis-Chalmers strike.

The conference began Saturday morning in an atmosphere of undisguised hostility between company officials and strike leaders. There had been over 70 days of labor war, climaxed by street fighting and tear gas. The outlook for agreement was anything but bright.

All that day, into the night, again all Sunday the mediators wrestled with the two groups. Sunday the elevators shut down, conferees climbed five flights to resume deliberations. Angry shouts occasionally punctuated the proceedings.

Then, suddenly, at 7 p. m. there was a loud burst of laughter, and 15 minutes later everyone was beaming. An agreement had been reached.

Actually the peace accord came about 6:30 p. m., at which time Edgar Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post and one of the mediators, drafted a resolution commending William H. Davis, chairman of the mediators, for his exceptional leadership. Meyer showed the proposal to the company officials and they approved it. He then put it up to the union men.

"Did the company officers accept the resolution in toto?" inquired Ed Hall, international representative of the union.

"Well, practically," said Meyer. "They quibbled over one word."

It was this statement that brought the burst of laughter, in which Allis-Chalmers officials joined. Both sides recalled that quibbling over words had characterized most of the two days' negotiating.

NOTE—Striking illustration of goodwill after the agreement occurred when the union men had to charter a plane from Washington to Milwaukee in order to get the agreement ratified by strikers Monday morning. So union leaders offered to take the company officials home at the same time.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

In the caste-bound British Navy enlisted men can rise to the rank of Lieutenant Commander, but U. S. Navy brasshats do not permit enlisted men to take examinations for permanent commissions except in one branch—the Supply Section. Even here the bars are up. The law permits enlisted men with four years' service as Warrant Officers to take examinations for an ensign's commission—but the brasshats have permitted no examinations... Dr. George A. Buttrick, former president of the Federal Council of Churches and a supporter of Herbert Hoover's plan to feed Nazi-occupied Europe, claims that Secretary of State Hull also approves the idea... To H. Harris Robson, director of the Maritime Commission's emergency shipping division, and M. L. Wilcox, his assistant, the 5 p. m. quitting gong means nothing. They hold conferences with shipping executives around midnight.

For Thursday, April 10

EVENTS of unprecedented and unpredictable importance, affecting the whole future life and its fortunes, are among the major predictions for this day, memorabilia for surprising and stirring adventures. These may be precipitated with whirlwind force and prove radical, novel and breathtaking. New matters of enterprising and constructive character may be launched under greatly stimulated creative forces. This in business, invention, science and adventure as well as in intellectual and artistic modes of expression. It is a time to attack such with might and main, although with some discretion.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden precipitated events, with things happening with lightning strokes if not entirely uprooting force. Radical in nature but constructive in the final issues, there may be change of environs, associations and interests. In a word expect the unexpected but keep vigilant as to fraud and misrepresentation. But take advantage of highly stimulated energies, quickened faculties, greatly accelerated emotions and adventurous or romantic urges. A child born on this day may have many skills and faculties, or expression in science, invention, literature, drama, with fine creative ability in almost any business or professional occupation.

A British Columbia editor has received 6,000 eggs in payment for subscriptions to his paper. He ought to be a mighty powerful man with Easter so near.

tax is due for an upward overhauling.

Also certain to be kited again are income taxes, and the so-called "nuisance" taxes — levies on liquor, tobacco, and tickets.

Administration chiefs would like to avoid this, but see no other handy source of big revenue. The alternative is a general sales tax, which has considerable backing on Capitol Hill, but is strongly opposed by President Roosevelt.

Present plans call for laying the tax question before Congress shortly after the House returns next Monday from its two-week recess. The Treasury will submit a number of "formulas" for its consideration.

McCrady Works On Plans To Assist Army Units

ROUTES 22, 23 TO BE USED BY FAST VEHICLES

Highway Patrolmen Confer With Safety Officials About Right-Of-Way

Informed that mass troop movements may pass through the city, day or night, during the next few months, Circleville Police Chief William McCrady was organizing a program Thursday which will clear Main and Court Streets of traffic within a few minutes' time.

Members of the American Legion and other organizations are being contacted to secure men who may act as volunteer patrols in sweeping all cars from the downtown sector.

Chief McCrady began his program immediately after he had conferred with state highway patrol officials late Wednesday. They told the chief that the government was expected to transport troops and perhaps "heavy equipment" over Route 23 and Route 22. They made no explanation of why the movements were being made or from which direction they would come, maintaining they were merely carrying out instructions from the United States Army.

Army units will keep an average speed of 20 to 25 miles an hour through the city, the state patrol officials said. They will be expected to stop for no traffic lights or no opposing traffic. An escort, yet to be organized, is to meet them at the city limits and lead them through. All traffic lights on the street they are passing will be turned red, Chief McCrady said.

To Set Up Signals

Although highway officials assured local police officers that they would be notified two or three days ahead of when troop movements were expected, Chief McCrady said he would organize a signal system to notify owners of all parked cars on Main or Court Streets. The fire alarm bell or the strawboard whistle will be utilized, the chief said, and when

ELDEST SON OF F. D. R. TO TAKE NURSE AS BRIDE

HOLLYWOOD, April 10—Captain James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, will be married next Tuesday to Romelle Theresa Schneider, attractive nurse, he said today.

They plan to make their formal application for a marriage license today, he said.

"We plan to have a quiet home wedding with only Miss Schneider's family and my mother with us," he said. "The only thing that could possibly change the date next Tuesday would be if my mother is delayed, which, of course, we do not expect."

"I am stationed now at the marine base at San Diego, but I don't know how long before I will be sent elsewhere, so we decided the signal is sounded, owners of cars parked along the street will be expected to remove them immediately.

Highway patrolmen also asked about facilities for holding troops here over night. Adequate space for pitching tents will be provided, according to Chief McCrady. The patrolmen asked about the availability of water, hay and straw, which indicated that cavalry units may be included in some of the movements.

Providing for troop movements has increased the complications of Circleville's parking problem and safety officials believe that a parallel system on both Main and Court would be the only system acceptable to the government. At last week's council meeting, councilmen teetered on the edge of adopting a 30 degree angle parking system on both Main and Court Streets, passing on the measure and later revoking their action by referring it to the safety committee.

Draft Board Marks Time

Other National Defense activity in the city is quiet at the moment, the local draft board having received no advance notices or official calls for nearly three weeks. Nine men were called into service April 3, another contingent of ten replacements on March calls, will leave next Thursday. The local board has classified more than 1,500 men and at present is prepared to send more than 150 men into immediate service.

to marry as soon as possible."

Capt. Roosevelt formerly was married to Betsy Cushing, from whom he was divorced a year ago last March.

Miss Schneider was Roosevelt's nurse when he was critically ill at Mayo Hospital in Rochester, Minn., two years ago. When he came to Hollywood to recuperate, Miss Schneider accompanied him as his nurse to assist him during his convalescence.

Following their marriage, Capt. Roosevelt and his bride will go to San Diego to make their home during the time the officer completes his service with the marines.
